FOREWORD.

The compiler of this volume had no thought of printing a book when she began her researches in family history. But after a time, it seemed well to attempt to introduce the many members of the family to each other, and no feasible way of doing this occurred to the writer, except the printing of this pedigree.

The first plan was to print every will, every inventory, every deed, in fact, every legal document to be found; all the traditions, memories, stories, that could be collected; and to add a personal description whenever possible, with a short biographical sketch. But the mass of material became so great, that it became evident that some more concise volume must first be prepared, in order to find out if anything more would be desired.

In the preparation of this volume, many books have been consulted; visits have been made to the Essex County Registry of Deeds, at Salem; the services of professional genealogists have been secured; many letters have been written; and personal visits have been made to those who could give valuable information. Early in 1903 circulars were sent to those of the family who could not readily be consulted otherwise, and at this time, (1907) about one-third of these remain unanswered, though each contained a stamped and addressed envelope. The circulars which were returned frequently contained conflicting information, as when four members of one family, each gave a different date for the death of the mother, these dates varying by more than a year. The church record sometimes is unlike the town record, and the gravestone inscription is not always like the family record.

In early colonial times, the lack of schooling was very general. There were practically no public schools, as we now understand the term, and girls were seldom sent to any school whatever. The signing of the name by a mark was common, and was not thought discreditable. It frequently happened that a man who could write his name, preferred to use a mark. Books were few and expensive, and many families owned none, unless it might be a Bible. Much comment has been made upon the apparent inability of our ancestors to learn to spell. But who of us knows how the English language will be spelled two hundred years from now? They spelled according to the custom of their times, and so it has been thought best to preserve their spelling, whenever a copy has been made.

Women lived a strictly domestic life, and their names seldom appear on the records, except on the occasion of birth, marriage, and death; though a man often appointed his wife as executrix of his will, and a widow was sometimes appointed guardian of her minor children.

In this connection, it might be well to state, that much time and effort has been spent in trying to discover the maiden name of Sarah, wife of Samuel Porter, No. 23. Thus far, the labor has been all in vain. If any reader of this book should possess this information, it is hoped that it may be sent to the compiler.

The Gregorian calendar was not adopted by English speaking people until long after it was in general use by other civilized nations. Before its use, New Year's Day was the twenty-fifth of March. The year 1751, when it was formerly adopted, was cut three months short by the change. Previous to that time, the months of January, February and March were by some accounted to belong to one year, and by some to another, according as they looked upon the New Year as beginning January 1st, or March 25th. This gave rise to a system of double dating, which has not been followed in this book. The years have been written throughout as though all had adopted the Gregorian calendar simultaneously, and may account for what might sometimes seem to be an error in dating.

The custom of giving the family name of the father to all his children is a modern one which has not yet been adopted in all parts of Europe. In earlier times the baptismal name was the only one a person started out with, and not infrequently, no two children in a family had the same surname, while one person frequently had several. The John in one family was distinguished from the John in another family, by the addition of some descriptive term, or what we now should call a nickname, as, for instance, Gilbert the Bold Swimmer; or by the addition of the name of his birthplace, as John of Gaunt; or the name of his residential town, as Herbert of Vermandois; or the name of some estate owned by him, as Turchill de Warwick. Even when one name was adopted to the exclusion of all others, it was not considered desirable to adopt any uniform method of spelling the name, a peculiarity well exemplified in the Herrick family.

This custom of giving the father's surname to all his children gives rise to a curious error. Most people think of themselves as being only of the father's family, because they have his name. But all the children of Samuel⁶ Porter (No. 30) have more Perley blood than Porter blood, as they all are descended from Allan Perley (No. 41) in two lines. While all the descendants of John³ Porter, (No. 10) are as much Herricks as Porters. For this reason it has been thought well to include in this volume, a short account of the various family connections, whenever it has been possible to do so.

Comparatively few persons have taken the trouble to compute the number of ancestors, even a few generations back, and therefore it is somewhat startling to be told that thirty generations ago each of us had ancestors numbering more than the entire population of the continent of Europe and the British Isles combined at that time. Doubling the number of ancestors in any generation in order to find the number in the preceding one, we find in the

5th generation	32 ancestors
10th generation	1,024 ancestors
15th generation	32,768 ancestors
20th generation	1,048,576 ancestors
30th generation	1,073,741,824 ancestors

The actual number would be somewhat reduced by the marriage of cousins, but it may safely be asserted that probably every descendant of the early settlers of New England are also descendants of William the Conqueror and his companions; of Alfred the great and of Charlemagne; and also of the humble myriads whose names were speedily forgotten when they once disappeared from sight. The annals of the lowly were not written, and so we can never know the lives of sacrifice and heroism which left no record behind. But a consideration of this matter may make it clear that the brotherhood of man is not a fanciful myth, but an ever-present reality.

There have been held two re-unions of the descendants of John Porter, one in 1895 and the other in 1898, both at Danvers. The following was the first call for the first gathering.

JOHN PORTER'S DESCENDANTS.

President,	REV. GEORGE W. PORTER, D. D., of Lexington, Mass.
Vice-Pres.,	ALDEN P. WHITE, of Salem, Mass.
	REV. ALFRED P. PUTNAM, D. D., of Concord, Mass.

Ass't Sec'y,	CHARLES C. PORTER of Salem, Mass.
Treasurer,	EZRA D. HINES, of Danvers, Mass.

SALEM, MASS., February, 1895.

Many of the descendants of John Porter, who settled in Salem, now Danvers, in 1644, desire to have a gathering of all who can trace their ancestry to him. With this object in view, they held a preliminary meeting and appointed the above list of officers.

It is proposed to hold the gathering in the town of Danvers, during the coming summer, near the original landing-place of John Porter.

Your interest and support are earnestly desired, and that the gathering may be as complete as possible, you are respectfully requested to send to the secretary the name and address of any who belong to the same family as yourself, together with their connection with the early family, as far as possible.

It is hoped that some time during the month of March, a larger and more complete meeting will be held, at which all who are interested may be present. At this meeting a more complete list of officers will be elected, and a committee of arrangements and other committees for the gathering will be appointed.

Due notice will be sent you of final arrangements, when completed.

Very respectfully,

MARTHA L. ROBERTS.

Second call for the first meeting.

FIRST GATHERING OF THE DESCENDANTS OF
JOHN PORTER, TO BE HELD IN DANVERS,
JULY 17, 1895.

SALEM, MASS., June 24, 1895.

A gathering of the descendants of John Porter, who settled in Salem, now Danvers, in 1644, is to be held in Danvers, Essex County, Massachusetts, July 17, 1895. It is earnestly desired that there shall be a large attendance at this first gathering, and a cordial invitation is extended to all his descendants, together with their husbands, wives, or fiancées.

THE PLACE OF GATHERING

will be near the site of John Porter's landing and home. To visitors the most convenient objective point will be the Unitarian Church, close by, at the corner of High and Porter Streets, where the business meeting and formal exercises will take place.

Danvers is a junction of the Lawrence Branch of the Eastern Division of the Boston and Maine Railroad, and of the Newburyport Branch of the Western Division of the same road. The scene of the gathering is on the direct line of electric cars from Salem, the cars leaving City Hall, Salem, every hour and half hour. These cars pass the Railroad Station in Salem, where trains arrive from Boston and from the East at frequent intervals.

Arrangements are in charge of committees, who are doing much to insure the comfort of all, and to add to the success of the occasion.

The programme will be substantially as follows:—

9.30 A. M. Assembling and Registering.

10 A. M. Business Meeting. Addresses by Rev. Horace Porter of Brooklyn, New York; Rev. Alfred P. Putnam of Concord, Mass.; Gen. Howard L. Porter of Concord, N. H.; Mr. F. M. Ray of Portland, Maine; and an historical sketch by Ezra D. Hines, of Danvers.

Social and informal hour, expected to be one of the most enjoyable features of the gathering.

- 1 P. M. Lunch. Informal and short, yes, short, after-dinner remarks, in charge of Mr. A. P. White.
- 3.30 P. M. A pleasant and easy pilgrimage about Historic Danvers especially to points of interest to the Porters. Danvers was formerly "Salem Village," the scene of the first outbreak of the witchcraft delusion of 1692, and abounds in interesting old houses and localities, including the old Page House, upon whose roof was the famous Revolutionary tea-party; "The Lindens" where were Gov. Gage's head-quarters; Gov. Endicott's orchard farm; the old Endicott pear tree; Oak Knoll, the home of John G. Whittier; the birth-place of Gen. Israel Putnam; the birth-place of that trusted and honored friend of Washington,

GENERAL MOSES PORTER.

Either special cars or carriages will be used for conveyance, as the efficient committee having the feature in charge may find most expedient, their object being to provide as much pleasure as possible with the least fatigue and expense. Such an excursion will under favorable conditions form a pleasing and memorable close to the day.

Arrangements have been made to have on exhibition any articles of historical or other interest, connected with the family. These will be safely protected in the Church, and all are requested to bring for exhibition any valuable or interesting relics to which they may have access. A description of such articles should be sent to Mr. Lester S. Couch, Asylum Station, Mass., previous to the 17th, that suitable labels may be prepared.

It is also expected that appropriate souvenirs will be provided, that each one may have some memento of the occasion.

A large reception committee will be in readiness to give needed information, acquaint the cousins with one another, and make each one feel at home. They can easily be distinguished as each one will wear a knot of red ribbon. There probably will be some in the Salem and Danver Railroad Stations, and others will be on the grounds.

The tickets for the lunch are fifty cents each, and it is imperative that we should know by July 15, for how large a number to provide. We cannot guarantee seats at the tables to any not engaging them in advance. You are requested to fill out and forward the enclosed postal card at your earliest convenience.

You are respectfully requested to send to the Secretary the names of any one in the family, who have not, to your knowledge, received a circular, and to register upon your arrival at the grounds.

For further information, address the Secretary.

Very Respectfully,
 MARTHA L. ROBERTS.

SECOND GATHERING
OF THE DESCENDANTS OF JOHN PORTER, WILL BE HELD IN THE UNIVERSALIST CHURCH,
COR. PARK AND HIGH STREETS,
DANVERS, MASSACHUSETTS,
WEDNESDAY, JULY 20, 1898.

SALEM, MASSACHUSETTS, March 31st, 1898.

The Second Gathering of the descendants of John Porter, who settled in Salem, now Danvers, in 1644, is to be held in Danvers, Essex County, Massachusetts, July 20th, 1898.

The place of gathering is not far from the site of John Porter's landing and home, and the most convenient point will be the Universalist Church.

Danvers is a junction of the Lawrence Branch of the Eastern Division of the Boston and Maine Railroad, and of the Newburyport Branch of the Western Division of the same road.

Electric cars leave Town House Square, Salem, for Danvers, every thirty minutes, and conductors will direct you to the Church.

Danvers, once known as "Salem Village" is quite interesting, not only from being the scene of the first outbreak of the witchcraft delusion of 1692, but as the birthplace of Gen. Moses Porter and of Gen. Israel Putnam. Gov. Endicott's farm was there, and the headquarters of Gov. Gage, whose house is now known as "The Lindens." There are many old historic houses, and the citizens are justly proud that Oak Knoll was the home of Essex County's honored son, John Greenleaf Whittier.

It is again arranged to exhibit in the Church, articles of historical interest to the family, and any having such, will please send a description of the same to Mr. Lester S. Couch, Danvers, Massachusetts, previous to the gathering, that labels may be written.

It is also hoped that souvenirs will be for sale, that each may have a memento. It is quite likely photographic views will be for sale.

The proceedings of the first gathering in July, 1895, have been bound in one volume, containing the addresses in the church, the after-dinner speeches, and the very interesting description given of the different points of interest visited during the car ride. It will be sent to any address, upon receipt of 50 cents. Please send check or post-office order—not stamps.

When our arrangements are fully completed we shall notify you. Kindly send to the secretary the address of any in the family who have not received a circular.

Very respectfully,
 MARTHA A. PORTER,
Secretary.

For sale, the Proceedings of First Gathering and Porter Leaflets.

This book does not claim to be a complete and final statement, but is sent out in the hopes of contributing to a much fuller and more accurate history of the family, and also as a means of communication among relatives otherwise unknown to each other. The writer is conscious of its many defects, but hopes that it will be accepted as an attempt to collect, in convenient form, the many scattered records, distributed through many towns, in many books. She gratefully acknowledges her indebtedness to all whose courtesy or assistance has made the book possible, and whose help has lightened the task of collecting the necessary data; and she will be equally grateful, if those who discover errors or omissions, will send correct records for future use.

The price of this book, in paper covers, postpaid, is $1.25. Bound in cloth, in a superior manner, the price is $1.75. Only three hundred copies are to be printed.

Orders for this book, or correspondence relating to it, should be addressed to

MISS JULIET PORTER,
37 Dean St., Station A,
Worcester, Massachusetts.

August 1, 1907.

EXPLANATIONS.

The names of the ancestors of Samuel Porter and of Martha Perley are printed in capitals.

The numbering is that used in most modern genealogies. The emigrant ancestor is numbered 1, and the figure 1 is placed a little above and to the right of his name. His children are numbered in consecutive order after him, and the figure 2 is placed above and to the right of each name; then follows the grand-children, with the figure 3 placed to the right and above. Then come the great-grandchildren in the same manner. Those having the same index figure to the right and above, are in the same generation from the original emigrant.

Two dates separated by a hyphen show the earliest and latest dates known in connection with the person, usually the birth and death, though sometimes it may be the date of baptism and of the will; a date followed by a hyphen is used when only one date has been found, and that a very early one; and a date preceded by a hyphen is used when the only date known is a late one.

The various spellings found, follow the family name, enclosed in a parenthesis.

An interrogation point enclosed in a parenthesis indicates doubt. The statement questioned has been found in some reputable publication, but has not been verified.

When no state is mentioned in connection with a city or town, Massachusetts is to be understood.

The abbreviations are few and simple and need no explanation.

In Part II, after the name of the head of each family, follows the pedigree back to Samuel Porter; thus,

Addison⁹ Preston,

(Hiram⁸ Preston, Hannah⁷ Porter, Samuel⁶ Porter)

indicates that Addison Preston was the son of Hiram Preston, who was the son of Hannah Porter, who was the daughter of Samuel Porter.

A name enclosed in a parenthesis gives the maiden name of a mother; as in No. 17, Nehemiah Porter married Hannah Smith, whose mother's maiden name was Hannah Grover.

Children's children are the crown of old men; and the glory of children are their fathers. PROVERBS, XVII, 6.

The pedigrees of horses, dogs and fancy pigeons, have a value that is quotable in terms of hard cash. Far more important for the student of human affairs are the pedigrees of men. By no possible ingenuity of constitution-making or of legislation can a society made up of ruffians and boors be raised to the intellectual and moral level of a society made up of well-bred merchants and yeomen, parsons and lawyers. One might as well expect a dray horse to win the Derby.

JOHN FISKE.

If I could ever suppose that family pride was in any case excusable, I should think a descent from a line of virtuous, independent, New England farmers for one hundred and sixty years a better foundation for it, than a descent through royal or titled scoundrels ever since the flood.

JOHN ADAMS.

No true man can trace the blood in his veins to a man who has earned bread, and home, and education for his children, by honest toil in any calling, however humble, without a feeling of just pride. The ancestors hands may have handled the plow, or been as black as his own smithy, and yet the true man who is his descendant will regard that brave workman with greater complacency than he could any ancestor possessed merely of fortune or high birth.

President J. F. TUTTLE, Wabash College. .

PEDIGREE I.

The Porter Family.

(Pooter, Poreter, Portor, Porthor, Portter, Poter, Potter.)

Most of the New England families bearing the name of Porter, can trace their origin to a few ancestors, who came to America in Colonial times. Several of these bore the name of John. There was John Porter and his wife Rose, who lived for a time in Dorchester, and then went to Windsor, Connecticut; John Porter, and his wife, Margaret Odding, who also lived in Dorchester, but later moved to Rhode Island; and the John Porter of this sketch.

Henry Porter Andrews, in his book "The Descendants of John Porter of Windsor, Conn.," states that the name originated in the reign of Henry I, one member of the family serving that monarch as "grand Porteur." However this may be, nothing has yet been found in reference to our John Porter previous to his appearance in Hingham. As it is neither known when he came to America, nor where he came from, so it cannot be known if he had the right to bear arms. In searching through the volumes of the Herald's Visitations, several Porter coats of arms were found, and though no two were alike, yet all bore three bells, which would indicate a common origin.

JOHN¹ PORTER,

Born in England about 1596, as he stated in a deposition made in 1669, that he was about 73 years old; died in Salem, Mass., Sept. 6, 1676, aged about 80 years.

Married MARY

There have been many surmises about the family name of Mary Porter, and it has often been suggested that she was the sister of Gov. Endicott; but in the Porter Genealogy by Henry Porter Andrews, it is stated on page 617, that Mary, sister of Gov. Endicott married Roger Ludlow, and lived in Windsor, Conn. She therefore was not John Porter's wife. It seems probable that John Porter was married before coming to America, and that he brought his two elder sons with him, as the record of the baptism of all his other children is to be found either at Hingham or Salem.

Only a little can now be known of Mary Porter, but that she was a woman of excellent judgment and of good executive ability is shown by the fact that her husband appointed her sole executrix of his will, although she must have been advanced in years at the time of his death, and his estate was a large one for those days.

The following transactions are to be found recorded at the Salem Registry of Deeds.

31: 6mo: 1676. "I ye sdd Mary Porter, for divers good causes & considerations me thereunto moving, especially for that good will & natural affection I have & bear to my loving kinsman & nephue Thomas ye son of Thomas Gardner, ye husband of Mary my daughter; have given & granted & by these presents doe freely & cleerely and absolutely give, grant & confirme unto ye said Thomas Gardner ye younger my kinsman afor.sd, - - - a lot of land which my husband John Porter bought of Wm. Dixey."

28: 10: 1678, Mary Porter deeded to Thomas Gardner 70 acres "nigh Ipswich river" valued at £60; and 18 June 1680, she deeded to Thomas Gardner, Jun., "marchant, my son-in-law" a certain "p'cell of ground be it more or less, lying in Salem by ye south river at the burying poynt." Signed by her mark, gX.

No later record of Mary Porter has yet been found.

John Porter first appeared in this country in the town of Hingham, and the first record of him is as follows:

- 2 Sept. 1637, there was laid out to him
- 7 acres for a houselot;
 - 5 " " a planting lot;
 - 28 " " a great lot on the east side of the river;
 - 4 " of salt marsh at Layford's Liking Meadows;
 - 3 " of fresh Meadow at Crooked Meadow;
 - 5 " for a planting lot at the Plain Neck;
 - 2 " of salt meadow at Weare Neck;
 - 2 " of fresh meadow at Turkey Meadow.

The next year he was granted 4 acres of upland and 20 acres of meadow at Nantasket.

The land where he probably built his first house is now included in the grounds of the Hingham Agricultural and Horticultural Society, on East street.

This first notice is characteristic of the man, as he spent his whole life in acquiring land, never seeming satisfied, it has been said, unless he could buy all the land adjoining his own. He lived in Hingham until 1643, when he moved to Salem Village, now Danvers, where he spent the rest of his life. His property in Hingham was not disposed of until 1648 when he sold it all to Nathaniel Baker.

10 May 1643. John Porter of Hingham, bought of the Rev. Samuel Sharp, of Salem, his farm in Salem, lying north of Mr. Skelton's, for £110, agreeing to pay for it in three installments, viz: 20 May 1643, £50; 1 May 1644, £30; 1 May 1645, £30; he made the last payment 20 June 1653. This farm contained about 300 acres.

This land was long known as Porter's Plains, and included what is now a large part of Danvers. It extended north to Beaver Brook and took in Lindall Hill, then called Porter's Hill. In Revolutionary days the hill was covered with a thick forest of oak trees, and here it was that the cannon were concealed from the British, when Col. Leslie tried, and failed to capture them, 26 Feb. 1775.

On this land, near the stream, which, from that day to this, has been called Porter's river, John Porter built his house, and until quite recently, the old cellar hole has been visible. But at a visit to the spot in the summer of 1904, it was found that excavations had been made that entirely obliterated the square depression that marked the site of the Porter homestead; and the indications were that houses would soon cover the tract formerly occupied by his garden and home buildings. At that time there was a clear view down the river for several miles, and one could easily understand why he selected this for his abiding place, when he came prospecting from Hingham.

The house he built has been thus described by Mr. Ezra D. Hines:

"The house was a typical one of the period. It faced south, had two stories in front; a door in the middle with large rooms on either side; two windows in each front room, looking down the creek, the landing place, and the river beyond. The same number of windows in the story above with an additional window over the front door; an entry below and above, and back of each the immense chimney; from the top of the house the roof slanted back making the old-fashioned leanto; on either end of the house there were doors, and on the eastern end a small entry way; on either end a small window in the attic, one window in the second story, one in the first story on the side of each front room and one on each end for the kitchen; back of each front room bedrooms; and back of these the kitchen or kitchens; bedrooms in the second story, and an open attic. In the front rooms were large fireplaces, both above and below, and also in the kitchens. From top to bottom on the front and sides of the house, between the woodwork and partitions, layers of bricks; near the northeastern end of the house the old well was built."

This house stood for more than two centuries, and was destroyed by fire on the night of the 19th of Sept. 1865.

In 1647 he had granted him "200 acres of feeding ground" and a year later he bought Bishop's farm, containing about 180 acres. In 1649 he was granted 10 acres of meadow, and the next year he bought the Downing Farm containing 500 acres, for which he paid £70 and firkin of butter; he afterwards gave this farm to his son Joseph for a wedding present. In 1652, he exchanged 10 acres of meadow for 50 acres of upland. In 1653, he bought 260 acres of land from Philip Cromwell, and a year later he bought 118 acres of upland and meadow, from Charles Gott. This land was commonly known as Gott's Corner. In 1658, he bought a tract of land, now known as Danversport, but then called Skelton's Neck, it being an early grant to the Rev. Samuel Skelton. He also bought 40 acres of land from Richard Richards in Topsfield and 20 acres from Robert Sanford. John Marsh and others, sold him "fourty" acres, and Pasca Foot, forty acres more. He bought 8 acres of William Nichols, and 70 acres from John Robinson of Topsfield. He also bought an acre and a half from William Dixey, and the same amount from John Hucheson. 1661, Land was "laide out at the buryinge poynt To Serg Porter, 35 foote."

At the time of his death, he was the largest land owner in Salem Village, his lands lying in what is now Salem, Danvers, Wenham, Topsfield, and Beverly.

That John Porter was an intelligent man is shown by the fact that in addition to the management of his own estates, he often served the town as surveyor and bridge builder. The following are some of the instances culled from the early records.

1640. He was one of a committee to divide Cohasset lands.

1647. On a committee to see to the finishing of three bridges.

1654. On several committees to settle bounds, measure and lay out land.

1657. On a committee to settle a highway.

1659. Appointed surveyor of the highway.

John Porter and his wife were Puritans, as is shown by the fact that both were members of the First Church in Salem, her name appearing on the list of members in 1644, and his in 1649. The following extracts show that his membership was not perfunctory and that he had the courage of his convictions.

1644. "At a general Town meeting, held the 7th day of the 5th month, 1644, ordered that two be appointed every Lord's day to walk forth in time of God's worship, to take notice of such as either lye about the meeting house, without attending to the word and ordinances, or that lye at home or in the fields without giving good account thereof, and to take the names of such persons, and to present them to the magistrates, whereby they may be accordingly proceeded against. The names of such as are ordered to this service are John Porter, Jacob Barney."

8 June 1657. It was agreed that the wife of Sergeant Porter "Shall be seated in the second seate where Mrs. hathorne & Mrs. Corwin latelie Sate;" and "that Sergeant Porter shall sitt in the seate with Capt. Traske."

13 July 1657. John Porter appointed to serve on a committee to see that the widow Jackson is paid 3s a week which the town allows her; "the said Porter to send his Corne and other Comodities to the house of mr Price where she may receiue the other 3d pt."

1659. Serg. John Porter witness in 14 cases of absence from public worship.

1661. Serg. Jno Porter placed in the Deacons seat.

1663. John Porter and Rev. Mr. Higginson appointed to attend the gathering and organizing of a church and the ordination of pastor Gilbert at Topsfield.

1672. At a meeting of the selectmen: "Farmer Porter hath liberty granted him to build a pew the first plan on the north side of the west door."

John Porter and his wife were not free from the troubles that vex mankind and a few of these appear in the public records; for instance, 1641. John Porter was fined "for want of gunpowder"; this fine was remitted by the General Court.

9 July 1644. John Burrig, a boy apprenticed to John Porter was sentenced to be severely whipped for "breaking up two chests and said Porter's man's chest, a hat band, and for taking a pig, (which he said he found one and a half miles from Mr. Downing's farm, but did not cry it) a chisel, and a drawing knife, and selling them. He sold the knife to Rier Leach. His master said that he lost a shirt the year before and suspected the boy."

9 Nov. 1657. "Ordered that the difference betwixt John Porter and John Putnam about a high way our mr Sharpes hill shall be determined by Captaine Traske sometye betwixt this and the last day of this month."

1668. "John Barnes of Salem Village, vs. John Porter, jr. of same. Barnes was servant of Serg. Porter and dwelt in his family, and asserts in his complaint that his master's son came home to his father's, and dwelling in the house, did often greatly disturb the family, and particularly abused said Barnes. As Sgt. Porter is powerless to prevent the trouble, cannot stay in the family unless the abuse is abated."

1663. Farmer Porter, is among those that "have not payed to the Towne charges, the building of the Meeting House and ministers house and other Towne charges. [Topsfield Records.]

1669. Deposition of Matthew Standley, "in the year 49 John Porter Senir told me that his Sonn John was gone for England and that he had given him 40 or 50 £ then saith the above sayd deponent did you give him this to improve for himselfe or for you. To the which the above sayd John Porter Seinor answered, it is for his portion, he stands or falls to himselfe either losse or gaine." Sworn in Court held at Ipswich 30 Mar 1669.

That John Porter was high in the esteem of his fellow townsmen appears early and late.

1640. Appointed assessor by the General Court.

1641. On a committee to make a rate for Hingham; also constable for Hingham.

1644. Elected Deputy to the General Court for Hingham; this was, at that time, the highest office in the gift of the people.

1649. He was elected selectman, and served in that capacity for twenty-seven years.

He was also constantly elected to serve on juries, the present method of obtaining jurymen being then unknown. Only persons of intelligence, integrity, and good judgment were thought fit to fill so important an office, and jurymen were selected with great care. He was also often asked to act as appraiser.

1668. Deputy to the General Court for Salem. Collector.

At the present time, little can be known about his family life, but the following extracts shed a faint light on the matter.

3 Feb. 1647-8. Marcy, the daughter of Rewben Guppie was "placed out" with John Porter until "the mayde" is 18 years old.

1664. Joseph Porter, Salem, . . . agreement between his father, Serg. John Porter, and William Hathorne, concerning the marriage of said Joseph with Anna, daughter of said William Hathorne, . . . wherein said Hathorne agrees to give his daughter £50 within two years from the date of their marriage; and said John Porter engages to give his son Joseph that farm known as the Downing farm with one half an acre of land in the town, near Mr. George Keaser, both which shall be given Joseph on the day of marriage. And also £50 to be paid in horses, neate cattle, hides, cider, some corn and some money, within one year after marriage, Jan. 2, 1664.

24: 11: 1673-4. Peter Joyes children put out to "sarvis"; Farmer Porter, Sen., takes the boy; Joseph Porter, the girl.

John Porter was the friend of Gov. Endicott, with whom he built a saw mill on Crane's river. He established the first tannery in New England, and thus founded the hide and leather trade. According to Gen. Howard Porter the remains of this tan yard were discovered a few years since by the late John Payne. The Massachusetts records show that he made at least two shipments to the Barbadoes. He was familiarly called "Farmer Porter," and "Sergeant Porter," and tradition has it that he was one of Hingham's quota in the Pequot war; he was afterwards on Gov. Endicott's military staff. The colonial records speak of him as "of good report for piety, integrity, and estate."

His will is a well preserved document and may still be seen at the Salem Registry of Deeds.

CHILDREN.

2. JOHN² PORTER, 1634-1684.

Unmarried.

"The eldest son of this most respectable family" is the only one for whom a bad record has been found. He was a mariner and engaged in trade. During his absence from home he acquired bad habits of living, so that he was imprisoned abroad, and his father had to pay a heavy sum to secure his release. His abuse of his parents made necessary an appeal to the law, and he was sentenced to stand on the gallows for an hour with a rope around his neck; to be severely whipped; committed to the house of correction; kept closely at work on a prison diet; not to be released until so ordered by the Court of Assistants, or the General Court; and to pay a fine of two hundred pounds. He was finally released and went to Rhode Island.

3. SAMUEL² PORTER, 1636-1660. (See beyond.)

Married HANNAH² DODGE. 1642-1688. (See Dodge Family.)

4. JOSEPH² PORTER, 1638-1714.

Married Anne, daughter of Maj. William and Ann Hathorne.
12 children.

Joseph Porter was a large land holder, and lived in that part of Salem now known as Danvers.

5. BENJAMIN² PORTER, 1639-1723.

Unmarried.

Benjamin Porter, after the death of his parents, lived in Danvers with his brother Israel, to whom he deeded most of his property, "in consideration of maintenance in food, washing and lodging, for many years."

6. Capt. ISRAEL² PORTER, 1643-1706.

Married Elizabeth, daughter of Maj. William and Ann Hathorne. 10 children.

Capt. Israel Porter has been described as "the head of a great and powerful family." He owned large landed estates, partly inherited, and partly acquired by purchase. He was one of the trustees of Salem Village, and one of the committee to buy from the Indians the land on which the town of Salem was built. He and his wife were both Puritans. His daughter Elizabeth was the mother of Gen. Israel Putnam, the commanding hero of Bunker Hill.

7. MARY² PORTER, 1645-1695.

Married Lieut. Thomas, son of Thomas and Hannah Gardner. 5 children.

Lieut. Thomas Gardner was the son of an eminent merchant in Salem, and owned several vessels, and was extensively engaged in the fishing trade. He held many town offices, the first being that of constable. Unless recently destroyed, the house he bought of his wife's brother-in-law is still standing on Essex street, Salem.

8. JONATHAN² PORTER, 1647.

9. SARAH² PORTER, 1649-1731.

Married Daniel, son of Thomas and Rebecca Andrew. 8 children.

Daniel Andrew was one of the prominent men of Salem Village, serving the town in many ways, and receiving the highest elective office, that of deputy to the General Court. That he was an educated man is shown by the fact that he kept school in his own house this being before the era of school houses.

Married HANNAH, daughter of WILLIAM and ELIZABETH DODGE, of Beverly. She was born 24 July 1642; died 2 Jan. 1688, age 46 Years. She married for her second husband, Thomas Woodbury, of Beverly. [See DODGE FAMILY.]

CHILD.

JOHN³ PORTER,

Born 1658; died 8 March 1753, in the 95th year of his age.

Married LYDIA, daughter of HENRY and LYDIA HERRICK, of Beverly. She was born 1661; died 19 Feb. 1737. (See HERRICK FAMILY.)

John Porter moved from Danvers to Wenham about 1680. He was a maltster, and lived on a farm a part of which he received from his grandfather, William Dodge, according to a deed recorded at Salem, 10 May 1690.

"To my daughter Hannah Woodberry a parcel of land in the bounds of Beverly about 12 acres; also, during her life, the improvement of one halfe my farne at Wenham which I bought of Mr. John Fisk; I give unto my grandchild Jno Porter, after my said daughters decease the reversion of said land to be disposed of according to the will of Samuel Porter deceased."

John Porter's lands in Wenham extended from Wenham Lake to Pleasant Pond, and for more than two hundred years a part of this land has been, without alienation, in the possession of his lineal descendants. He was an active and influential citizen, filling many offices with distinction. He was moderator of town meetings in 1723, '24, '27, '28, '29; representative to the General Court in 1712, 1724, and 1726. In Allen's history of Wenham is the statement that "the name of Porter has been one of the most conspicuous in the history of Wenham."

John Porter made no will, having divided his property among his children during his lifetime.

23 April 1723. Deed of gift to son John of 40 acres in his possession, and 4 acres of meadow called Denman's lot, and 7 acres of meadow called Fiske's lot, and one common right in the great swamp.

23 April 1723. Deed of gift to son Nehemiah of Ipswich of 46 acres in his possession.

1 Aug. 1738. To son Samuel, his house and homestead on the west side of the road leading to Wenham meeting house; 5 acres of salt marsh, 10 acres north part of my land on west side of Wenham Pond, on condition that he pay his six sisters £30 each within two years after my decease.

22 Aug. 17³8. "I John Porter, for and in consideration of Natural Love & Parental affection which I have & bear unto my six daughters viz, Lydia the wife of William Lamson Hannah the wife of Thomas Kimball, Elizabeth the wife of Joseph Goodhue Mehitable the wife of Caleb Kimball, Mary the widow of Robert Cue decd & Sarah the widow of Thomas Dodge decd have given granted & conveyed and by these presents do give grant & convey to them my said six daughters in equal shares and to their Heirs forever All my Household Goods and Furniture within doors & also my stock of Creatures that shall be living at the time of my decease also I give unto them & their heirs respectively fifty pounds a piece in Bills of Credit to be paid them or their Heirs in two years after my decease by my sons Samuel & Jonathan as I have directed."

"In witness of the foregoing I the said John Porter have delivered unto each of my said Daughters a Silver spoon as part of the within bequest."

2 July 1739. Deed of gift to sons Benjamin of Boxford, and Nehemiah of Ipswich, 18 acres of upland and Meadow on the river running out of Wenham Pond, on condition that they pay their six sisters, Lydia, Hannah, Mehitable, Mary and Sarah, £5 each within twelve months after my decease.

28 May 1741. Deed of gift to son Samuel of 3 acres of land.

Married 1st., Rebecca, daughter of Rev. John and Rebecca (Hale) Chipman.

Married 2nd., Elizabeth Nowell of Boston.

9 children.

Rev. Nehemiah Porter early decided to enter the ministry, and after graduating from Harvard College, studied theology with Rev. George Lesslie. In 1750 he was ordained pastor of the church in Chebacco parish, and remained there 16 years. He then went to Nova Scotia, where he remained for a few years, and then returned to Massachusetts, and was installed as pastor in Ashfield, where he remained until his death, having served for seventy-five years as a minister of the Gospel. He was a person of unusual originality, and an uncompromising patriot. He volunteered his services as chaplain during the Revolution, and always believed that his prayers turned the tide in favor of the Americans at the battle of Saratoga. He was strongly anti-slavery, and rendered important services to his country by his counsels. Many interesting stories are told of him; of his unswerving rectitude; his ready wit; his undaunted patriotism. There is room for only one here. A gentleman who refused to attend church ended his argument with "I have a right to think as I have a mind to." To which Mr. Porter instantly replied, "You have no right to think wrong."

Soon after the close of the Revolution, a society called the Ohio Company, was formed for the purpose of founding a state on the banks of the Ohio river, and Ebenezer Porter was one of those who shared in the enterprise. The first party started for the Ohio in 1787, and he was of the number; later he returned and took his family back with him. He had previously served in the expedition against Crown Point.

LIEUT. SAMUEL⁶ PORTER,

Born in Boxford, 8 May 1746; died in Chester, N. H., 8 May 1833, aged 87 years.

Married, 27 Nov. 1770, MARTHA, daughter of SAMUEL and RUTH (HOWE) PERLEY, of Ipswich.

Martha Perley was born 25 Jan. 1752; baptized in the Linebrook church, 9 Feb. 1752; died in Chester, N. H., 19 Jan. 1837. She has been described by one who knew her as a person of medium size, with beautiful blue eyes, bright brown hair, and the manners of a gentlewoman. During her widowhood she lived with her daughter Mrs. Hannah Preston, in the house of Mr. Rufus Phillips, which is now owned by Mr. G. W. Davis, of Chester, N. H., and her room is still pointed out to the curious Porter visitors. At the present time, (1907) Mrs. Catherine M. Porter, North Somerville, is probably the only person who remembers Martha (Perley) Porter.

Samuel Porter lived in Ipswich, Boxford, Bradford, and Chester, N. H. His house in Chester is no longer standing, and the grounds that surrounded it now form a part of the old graveyard, where he and his wife are buried. He is described by one who remembered him, as a person of very decided opinions and not easily influenced by others. He was a Revolutionary soldier, marching on the Lexington Alarm, 19 April 1775. (Mass. Archives, Lexington Alarm, Vol. XI, page 259.) He was in Capt. John Cushing's company, Col. Samuel Johnson's regiment. He was chosen by field officers as second lieutenant of Capt. Robert Dodge's company, and commissioned by council, 7 May 1776, at Ipswich. His son Nehemiah used to amuse his grandchildren by telling stories of the Revolution, one of which was as follows. One night when Samuel was on sentry duty, it was evident that the British were about to make some move, and the Americans wished to know on which of two roads they were likely to make their march. It occurred to Samuel that on one of the roads there was a bridge, and he lay down and put his ear to the ground, and was able to tell by the hollow sound that they had passed over the bridge, and this information enabled the Americans to defeat the British in a skirmish the next day.

Just when he moved to Chester is not known, but he was living in Boxford in 1775. At first he hired a farm in Chester of Mr. Matthew Templeton, but later bought a place of his own, where he lived until his death. He was called by the Indians, "Port Pig's Ear," though the origin of the curious name is now unknown.

and late in life went to live with his niece, Mrs. Hoover, in the western part of New York State. He served in the war of 1812.
He was a shoemaker by trade, and followed that occupation as long as he lived in Chester. For quite a long time he lived alone in a small house on the Candia road, and much of his leisure was spent in beautifying its surroundings. He was fond of reading, and well versed in the political questions of the day; an interesting talker, frequently illustrating his remarks with snatches of song; a tireless worker, the tapping of his hammer being heard early and late, although much of his life he was crippled by rheumatism.

PEDIGREE II.

The Perley Family.

(Parlay, Parley, Parly, Pearle, Pearlay, Pearley, Pearly, Payerley, Pairlay, Perlay, Perley, Perly, Perle, PerLea, Aperley.)

The Perley family has been one of considerable importance in New England since early colonial times. Its members have been found in all the learned professions; in nearly every trade; and have served in both the army and navy. For about a hundred years, they all lived within a radius of about five miles, a spot sometimes called the "charmed circle," from which they have travelled to all parts of the Union.

The oldest document about the family is a chart which gives the male descendants of Allen for four generations. It is stated on this chart that he came from Wales, England, and landed at Charlestown, near Boston, July 12, 1630.

A good deal of time has been given to searching out Allan's English ancestry, but thus far, without success. Although the name Perley, variously spelled, has been found, no Allan has been discovered.

A very complete genealogy of the Perley Family has been published by Mr. M. V. B. Perley, of Salem, Massachusetts.

ALLEN¹ PERLEY,

Born about 1608; died in Ipswich, 28 Dec. 1675, aged about 67 years.

Married, 1635, SUSANNA BOKESSEN or Bokenson, who died 11 Feb. 1692.

Allan Perley, the emigrant ancestor of the Perley family in America, first came to New England in the fleet of Gov. Winthrop, 1629, and settled on land called "Button End" that is now within the town of Woburn, near a tract of land which has been called "Parley Meadow" for more than two centuries and a half. After a short stay, he returned to England, remaining there until April 1635, when he again set sail for America on board the ship "Planter" at which time his age is given on the passenger list as 27 years. He had a certificate from the minister of St. Albans, Hertfordshire, which indicates that St. Albans must have been his home, though researches in the various records in England, find no mention of him thus far. On his arrival he settled in Topsfield, where he lived for seventeen years, and then moved to Ipswich, where he spent the rest of his life. His landed estates were extensive; he owned land in Essex, Rowley, Boxford, and a large tract in Ipswich, at Heartbreak Hill.

He and his wife were both Puritans, and were received into the church at Ipswich, 12 Aug. 1674.

63. REV. SAMUEL⁴ PERLEY, 1742-1831.

Married his cousin Hepsibah, daughter of John and Mercy (Howe) Fowler.

8 children.

Samuel Perley was graduated from Harvard College in 1763, and afterwards studied under the Rev. George Lesslie. He led a company of Volunteers to the battle of Bunker Hill, but arrived too late to be of service. He was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Seabrook, N. H., and his parish was said to be a sort of Gretna Green for all the discontented lovers in Massachusetts. He preached for a time both in Moultonborough, N. H., and Groton, N. H., and afterwards in Gray, Maine, where he served until 1791, after which time he did not preach. He practiced medicine during and after his ministry, and was a justice of the peace for 21 years. He was representative to the General Court, and in 1787, was a member of the convention that ratified the federal constitution, and voted in favor of its adoption.

He afterwards became a successful privateer, and was commissioned commander of "The Success," 15 Aug. 1776. This vessel was captured by the British, with all on board. Being an officer he refused to do menial duty, and was instantly shot.

66. RUTH⁵ PERLEY. 1747-1769.
Married, Jonathan, son of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Blunt) Ames, of Boxford.

Ruth (Perley) Ames was believed to have been poisoned by her mother-in-law, who was tried for murder, but acquitted. In accordance with a superstition of the times, the dead body was covered with a sheet, and all persons present were asked to touch the corpse, the belief being that when the murderer performed this ceremony, blood would flow and stain the sheet. Mrs. Ames and her son Jonathan refused to do this. So great was the hostility against them, that the Ames estate was sold, and the family moved to parts unknown. A full account of the affair can be found in the Essex Antiquarian, Vol. II, page 1.

PEDIGREE III.

The Dodge Family.

Not much has been published in reference to the Dodge family previous to their emigration to America, though it is well known that the English family flourished in Shropshire and Somersetshire, and that the name was spelled Doidge. Mr. Joseph T. Dodge, of Madison, Wisconsin, has compiled a very complete and painstaking genealogy of the American Dodges, which is recommended to those who wish more detailed information of these kinsmen.

Richard Dodge first came to Salem, but finally settled in North Beverly. He was a quiet man, who gave his attention chiefly to farming and domestic affairs. He was a loyal member of the church, to which he was a generous contributor, and gave the land for a cemetery. His interest in education is shown by the fact that his name heads the list of twenty-one subscribers to a fund for Harvard College, and that he gave four times as much as any of the others.

71. WILLIAM¹ DODGE, 1604-1692. (See beyond.)

William Dodge came to New England in the "Lyons Whelpe," in the year 1629, the ship he came in being one of the fleet of Gov. Winthrop, which brought about forty planters, chiefly from Somersetshire and Dorsetshire. A letter to Gov. Winthrop describes him as "a skilful husbandman", and asks that he be given "ye charge of ye team of horses". He lived in Beverly, where he became a useful and influential citizen, being elected or appointed to serve the town in many ways, selectman, grand juryman, trial juryman, on church and town committees, and deputy to the General Court. In 1685, he disposed of his landed estate by deed, imposing on his son William the duty of "paying to my brother if he come to New England and dwell in this town of Beverly £5 per annum as long as he shall dwell here."

PEDIGREE IV.

The Herrick Family.

(Eirikr, Eric, Erick, Ericke, Ereke, Eyrek, Eyreck, Eyrick, Eyricke, Eyryk, Eyryck, Erryk, Hearick, Herik, Herick, Hericke, Heryek, Heyrick, Hericke, Heyricke, Heyrick, Herrick)

This name is of Scandinavian origin, and is the northern form of Enrique, Enrico, Henricus and Henry of southern nations. Instead of using this name, some members of the family called themselves de Stretton, from their place of residence.

“The Eyricks were seated, at a very remote period, at Great Stretton, Leicester Co., in that respectable line of life, so justly the pride of an Englishman, free tenants of their own lands, two virgates of which they held under the Abbey of Leicester, on the payment of an annual quit rent to the king of a pound of pepper”. Dean Swift says, “There is a tradition that the most ancient family of the Erieks derive their lineage from Erick the Forester, a great commander, who raised an army to oppose the invasion of William the Conqueror, by whom he was vanquished, but afterwards employed to command that prince’s forces, and in his old age retired to his house in Leicestershire, where he ended a stormy and eventful life, and where his family hath continued ever since.”

In the year 1901, the compiler of this volume had the pleasure of calling at Beaumanor Park Hall, Loughborough, Leicester Co., England, for several centuries past, the home of the Herricks. Beaumanor is one of those great estates, so common in England. “As far as the eye can reach, all the land belongs to Beaumanor,” we were told. The house, situated some two miles from the park entrance, is a large modern residence, surrounded by fine lawns and gardens. Three other buildings have stood on this site, the first one having been built in 1340.

From the very nature of the case, any pedigree that goes back into the Middle Ages must be largely legendary, and this one is no exception. The ancient authorities, like many modern ones, vary in their accounts, and there are always gaps in such a lineage. In early times, it was considered discreditable for a man to die of illness in bed, and when such a calamity occurred in a household, the victim was seldom mentioned afterwards. A son with such a paternity, would like to have it forgotten, and would talk of his grandfather and great-grandfather, who perished on the battle field, but would not mention the father who died a natural death. Many other such pedigrees might be printed here, but this one is given as a fair sample of them all.

In the following pedigree, the names from Siwald III, to Harold Gormson are taken from "The Danish History of Saxo Grammaticus," the earliest Danish historian, who flourished in the Middle Ages. The others are taken from "The History and Antiquities of Leicester County" by John Nichols, and from the Herrick Genealogy, by Gen. Jedediah and Lucius C. Herrick, M. D.

The Herrick coat of arms bears a bull's head as a crest, and the motto is "Virtus omnia Nobilitat."

88. SIWALD III, King of Denmark, had a son,

89. SNIO, of whom many romantic tales were told. He married the daughter of the king of the Goths. They had a son,

90. BIORN, who had a son,

91. HARALD II, whose son,

92. GORM I, married a Swedish woman. Gorm cared more for knowledge than for war, and was highly honored among the Danes. He travelled much, even reaching Iceland. His son,

93. GOTRIC, or Gothry, or Godfred, flourished about 800. He married a daughter of Gaut, King of Norway. He was a successful warrior, and added much to his kingdom. He is the first of the genuinely historic Danes. His daughter,

94. ELSA, married Siward II, also called Siward Ring, of Norway. Their son,

95. RAGNAR LODBROK, flourished in the 9th century. He married Thora, daughter of Herraud, or Heroth, of the old line of Swedish kings. Ragnar was a genuine viking, and a great hero among the Danes. He received his name Lodbrok (Shaggy Breeches) from his father-in-law. King Herraud offered his daughter in marriage to any one who would slay two snakes that were ravaging his kingdom. Ragnar dressed himself in very wooly clothes, plunged into the river and allowed the water to freeze his garments stiff, and then attacked and killed the serpents. When Herraud saw him in this array, he called out "Lodbrok" and the name ever clung to him. He was in a state of continual war, and was finally captured by the English, who threw him into a dungeon with venomous reptiles, and left him to perish. His son,

96. SIWARD III, was Earl of Scotland, and King of Denmark. He received the Danish kingdom by a sovereign vote of the people. "He liked better to be famous with the gown than with the sword," and for many years he was neither attacked by his enemies, nor did he attack them. His son,

97. ERIK, the CHRISTIAN, began life emulating the deeds of his grandfather, but later became a Christian. He married a daughter of the Earl Harald of Jutland. Their son,

98. KANUTE I, was a man of great ability and integrity, but remained a pagan to the end of his days. His son,

99. FROTHA VI, or Frode, died young. His son,

100. GORM II, the Englishman, ruled for a time both in England and Denmark, but later allowed England to slip out of his control. His son,

101. HARALD III, devoted himself to preserving his kingdom rather than extending it. His son,

102. GORMO III, L' Ancient, Tardus, reigned from 860 to 936. He married Thyra, daughter of Ethelred the Unready, King of England and grand-daughter of Alfred the Great. Gorm was very famous in his times, and added greatly to his kingdom, and was the first to rule all Denmark. He was the last of the pagan kings, though he married a Christian woman. His son,

103. HARALD IV, also called Harald Gormson, and Blaataud (Bluetooth); married Gynthia, Queen of Sweden. He was enthroned 946. His son,

104. ERICKE, invaded England, but was conquered and compelled to settle in East Anglia, now known as Leicestershire. He is known in history as "Ericke, King of those Danes who hold the Countrie of East Angle." He was the great-grandfather of,

105. ERIC, the FORESTER, who owned extensive domains along the sources of the Severn and on the borders of Wales. From him was descended,

106. EYRYK of Great Stretton, who lived in the times of Henry III. He had a son,

107. HENRY EYRYK, of Great Stretton, living in the 12th Century, who had a son,

108. JOHN EYRYK, of Great Stretton, whose son,

109. ROBERT EYREK, of Stretton, married Joanna . . . They had a son,

110. SIR WILLIAM EYRYK, also known as Sir William de Stretton; Knight; he was living in 1355. From him was descended,

111. ROBERT EYRICKE, of Houghton-on-the-Hill, who was living in 1450; he married Agnes . . . Their son,

112. THOMAS EYRICK, gentleman, of Houghton, died 1518. He settled in Leicester, and his is the first of the name on the books of the corporation, where he is recorded as a member of that body in 1511. He is buried in St. Martin's Church. His son,

113. JOHN HEYRICK, of Leicester, was born about 1513; died 2 April 1589.

Married Mary, daughter of John Bond, of Wardende, (Little Bromwich) Warwickshire. Her portrait is to be found in Nicholl's History of Leicester Co., the original of which hangs in Beaumanor Park Hall. She lived to be 97 years old. Her grandfather, Thomas Bond, was mayor of Coventry in 1497, and was a noted man in his times. He was much given to works of benevolence, and founded a hospital. His son, 114. SIR WILLIAM HERRICK, born about 1557; died 20 March 1652.

Married, 6 May 1596, Joan, daughter of RICHARD and MARY (HILLDERSON) MAY, of London. She was born in 1578 and died 3 July 1645.

Sir William Herrick, the most illustrious member of this family "was a man of great abilities and address, remarkably handsome in person, and high in the confidence of Queen Elizabeth and James I, and by honorable services to both, acquired a large property." He was in business for himself, being "goldsmith at the Rose in Cheapside." He was not only the court banker, but also Teller of the Exchequer, and member of parliament, serving several terms. About 1595 he bought Beaumanor Park, and retired to private life, devoting himself to the care of his estates. In 1605 he was knighted by King James "for making a hole in the great diamond the King did wear." Fine portraits of Sir William and Lady Joan hang in the dining room at Beaumanor, his bearing the date 1628, and hers the inscription

"Art may hir outside thus present to view
How faire within no art or tongue can shew."

The following inscription may still be seen on the north wall of St. Martin's Church in Leicester.

Mors mihi lucrum.
Hic sepultum jacet corpus Gulielmus Herriek de Beaumanor, in com Lecestriae, equilis aurati; qui matrimonis junctus erat Joannae May filiae Ricardi May, de Mayfield, in com Sussexicae armigeri; ex qui generat 7 filios et 5 filias.
Tandem, anno D'ni 1652, Martii 20, aetatis 96, obdormuit in Dominus.

115.

HENRY¹ HERRICK,

Fifth son of SIR WILLIAM HERRICK, born at Beaumanor Park, Loughborough, Leicester Co., England, in 1604; died in Salem, Mass., 1671.

Married EDITH, daughter of HUGH and ALICE LASKEN, of Salem. She was born 1614, and was living in 1677.

Little has been found in reference to the Lasken Family. In 1635 Hugh Lasken was one of the proprietors of Salem; 1636, church member; and in 1654 he sold his dwelling house together with ninety acres of upland and six acres of meadow to Roger Haskell. The inventory of his estate was taken 21 March 1659, and Henry Herriek was appointed administrator.

Just when Henry Herriek came to America is not known, but it is probable that he first went to Virginia, and from there to Salem, where he settled at Cape-Ann-Syde, now Beverly. Soon after his arrival in Salem, he bought large tracts of land, and gave a large farm to each of his sons. He was himself a farmer in easy circumstances, and devoted himself to the care of his estates. He was a Puritan, and he and his wife were among the founders of the First Church in Beverly. That he was a man in advance of the times in which he lived is shown by the following extracts from the records of the Essex County Court.

"Henerie Hericke and his wife Edith are fined 10s and 11s for costs of court for aiding and comforting an excommunicated person contrary to order."

"Henry Herrick and Benjamin Balch fined for entertaining Nicholas Dickap." Nicholas Dickap's sole offence was that he was a stranger in Beverly.

Henry Herrick had a large family of children, twelve sons, it is said, and several daughters; but those given here are the only ones that lived to adult life.

PEDIGREE V.

The Smith Family.

129.

JAMES¹ SMITH,

(Smyth, Smythe.)

Died in Woolwich, Maine, 1660.

Married ELIZABETH

She married 2nd., Richard Hammond, who was killed by the Indians, 14 Aug. 1676. She married 3rd., Capt. John Rawdon of the Sagadahoc militia.

James Smith is said to have come from Cornwall, England, and he lived on a large farm which he bought from the Indian chief, Robin Hood. It was situated on the east bank of the Kennebec river. He appeared at the first court, Ashley House, and was appointed first recorder.

8 May 1648. "Be is known" . . . "that I, Ramegin, soe called by my Indian name, or Robinhood, soe called by English name, Sagamore of Negusset [or Negausseag] doe freely sell vnto James Smith"
 "part of my land, beginning at Merry-meeting Cove, and soe downward to the maine riuer vnto a rocke, called Winslowe's Rocke, in the long reach, and in breadth eastward over the little riuer running through the great mersh, with the priuileges reserved to me as huntunge, fowleing, fishing and other games." Smith was to pay him or his heirs on the first of November annually "one peck of Indian corn."

(Drake's Book of the Indians, Vol. III, page 100.)

Richard Hammond, with his family, sixteen persons in all, lived in a fort on the Kennebec river, which fort he probably built himself. He carried on trade with the Indians, and they believed that he had cheated them. On the evening of the 13th of Aug. 1676, a party of Indians appeared at Mr. Hammond's house and their behaviour so frightened a young girl in the family, that she withdrew into a field of corn, and made her way several miles to the house of friends, whom she alarmed, and with them escaped. Mr. Hammond, and his step-son, Samuel Smith, were killed, as were some of the servants. The rest of the family were carried into captivity. When released, the Smith brothers, James, Walter, and Hazadiah, settled in Beverly.

He was many times trial and grand juror, often selectman, and several times elected to the General Court. He had the courage to oppose the General Court which had decided against a freer franchise. Felt calls him "an intelligent citizen", and says "the loss of such men as Mr. Barney is not easily supplied." In the settlement of his estate, mention is made of the widow Elizabeth, his "only son Jacob", "our son and our daughter John Grover and Hannah Grover" as well as Sarah and Abigail Grover, and his son-in-law John Cromwell is called an heir. PEDIGREE VIII.

The Trumbull Family.

(Turnbull, Trumbel, Trumble.)

This family traces its ancestry back to a Scotch peasant, who having both strength and courage, saved the life of King Robert the Bruce, from an attack of a wild bull in Stirling Park. King Robert gave him the name of Turnbull, the estate of Badyreul, near Peebles, and the arms which have since been borne by his descendants. On the coat of arms are three bull's heads, with a bull's head for a crest, and the motto is "Fortuni Favet Audaci."

"Bold was the chief from whom their line they drew,
 Whose nervous arm the furious bison slew;
 The bison, fiercest race of Scotia's breed,
 Whose bounding course outstripped the red deer's speed.
 By hunters chafed, encircled on the plain,
 He, frowning, shook his yellow lion mane,
 Spurned with black hoof, in bursting rage, the ground,
 And fiercely tossed his moony horns around.
 On Scotia's Lord he rushed with lightning speed,
 Bent his strong neck to toss the startled steed;
 His arms robust the hardy hunter flung
 Around his bending horns, and upward wrung,
 With writhing force his neck retorted round,
 And rolled the panting monster on the ground,
 Crushed with enormous strength his bony skull;
 And courtiers hailed the man who turned the bull."

162

JOHN¹ DRESSER,

Buried 19 April 1672.

Married MARY

John Dresser was a shoemaker, and early settled in Rowley. At the general survey of the town, 1643, he received 80 acres of land, and in 1668, 67 additional acres. 1652, the town granted that "John dreser should Inioy the grasse growing on the hieway that runes along by his acre of salte marsh to the oyster point." That same year, according to the town records, he had four cows and two "calues." 1660, he was chosen "searlher of leyther," which office he often filled, as well as that of selectman.

His will was dated 5 March 1672; in it he mentions his wife Mary; eldest son, John; son Samuel; daughter Elizabeth; his grandchildren, John, Mary and Martha, children of his son John; and two daughters, unnamed, of his son Samuel.

James Howe first settled in Roxbury, but before 1642 had moved to Ipswich, where he spent the rest of his life. He was a weaver. "Mr. James Howe, a good man of Ipswich, 104 years old is buried today. During her imprisonment, her husband, who was blind, and one of her daughters, visited her in prison, making the journey on horseback, the daughter managing the horse.

The family who were well-to-do, used up all their means in their endeavor to save the mother. One of the daughters sought out the governor, and implored a pardon, but it was of no avail.

Increase Howe lived in Ipswich, and was the popular inn-keeper of the day. His tavern is now transformed into an elegant private mansion.

"This house is interestingly historic, as Washington was entertained there in 1789; and it was the Ipswich home of Mary Lyon, of sacred memory. Increase Howe is remembered to this day for his bitter opposition to the erection of the first South Meeting-house on the training common, or Green, before his door." It proves that he had an eye for beauty, for his complaint was that "it shut away the stretch of green and river."

PEDIGREE XII.

The Dane Family.

205.

JOHN¹ DANE,

Born at Barkhamstead, England, about 1587; died in Roxbury, where he was buried 14 Sept. 1658.

Married 1st., FRANCES ROWLEY,(?) who came to America with him. There is some doubt about the maiden name of his first wife. She died soon after 1652.

Married 2nd., Annis, widow of William Chandler.

John Dane, "plain tailor and strict puritan," came from Bishop's Stortford, Hertfordshire, England. He arrived in New England about 1636, and lived for a time in Ipswich, but later moved to Roxbury, where the rest of his life was spent.

1652 he made a deed of gift to his "dear and loving wife, Annis Dane, formerly wife of William Chandler, all the housings and lands that were said Chandler's."

1649, "Upon the petition of John Dayne that the house and lands that was Wm. Chandlers" be settled upon "ye said Dayne, he having paid more debts of Chanlrs than the house and land was worth & and also brought up the children of said Chandler w'ch have been chargable to him." This petition was granted.

In his will he gives his son Francis a woodlot; his daughter Elizabeth Howe, a black cow, in the hands of George Abbott, of Andover; his son John a featherbed, a pewter platter, and a yellow rug; and to his widow, most of his movables.

CHILDREN.

206. Dr. JOHN² DANE, 1612-1684.

Married 1st., Eleanor Clarke.

Married 2nd., Alice . . .

6 children.

Dr. John Dane was the first of his family to come to America, though his parents followed soon after. He was the author of "A Declaration of Remarkable Providences in the Course of my Life," which is printed in full in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. VIII. When he ran away to play, contrary to orders, he records that his father "toke me and basted me." Later, when about nineteen years old, he received another "basting" for attending a dancing class; whereupon, he took "2 shurts" his best "sute" and a "bybell" and left home to seek his fortune. He had many curious experiences before he settled down at "wood Roe hatfield," where he succeeded so well that he "lived in the chief place in the towne, and toke a prentis and kept a gurniman." But in spite of his prosperity, he was dissatisfied, having a strong desire to "come to nu ingland, thinking I should be more fre here then thare from temptations." He evidently learned that temptations come from within, for later he records "I find here a deuell to tempt and a corupt hart to deseue." In 1661 his house burned down and he describes the conflagration as "a most uialiant fier." In this record he mentions "my sister How" and my brother How's father, a very onest man."

Married JAMES HOWE. 1598-1702. (See HOWE FAMILY.)

Married 2nd., Mrs. Mary Thomas.

Married 3rd., Mrs. Hannah (Chandler) Abbott, daughter of his stepmother.

Rev. Francis Dane lived in Andover, where he kept a private school, in addition to his labors as clergyman. He served the church there for 48 years. He was an able opponent of the witchcraft delusion, which he denounced with persistence and vigor. Two of his daughters, and three granddaughters were among the accused, and three of them sentenced to death, though none of them were executed. After a time, it was hinted that he also was in league with the devil, a suggestion that received scant favor from his fellow townsmen. "A man of strong sense, and fearless courage, and Christian Fortitude. When almost every member of his family was under arrest or suspicion he said, 'the Lord give us all a submissive will, and let the Lord do with me and mine what seems good in his eyes.'"

PEDIGREE XIII.

The Peabody Family.

(Pabodie, Pabody, Pabodye, Pebody.)

The name of this family is said to have originated about the year 61, in the reign of Nero, at which time the Britons were in a state of vassalage to the emporor. A kinsman of Queen Boadicea by the name of Boadie, fought against the emperor, but being defeated, fled into Wales, where he lived among the mountains. The name Boadie signifies "Man," and Pea means "Mountain." So the man who lived among the hills came to be called Peabodie or the Mountain Man, and his descendants have been called Boadie, Hill, Mann, Mont, Mountain, and Peabody.

209.

JOHN¹ PEABODY,

Born in England about 1590; died 1667.
Married ISABELL. . . .

John Peabody came early to New England, and probably lived for a time in Lynn, afterwards moving to Bridgewater, where in 1645, he was one of the original proprietors. He is said to have been the ancestor of all the Peabodies in America.

LIEUT. FRANCIS² PEABODY,

Born in England about 1614; died in Topsfield, 19 Feb. 1698.

Married 1st., LYDIA

Married 2nd., Mrs. MARY WOOD, daughter of REGINALD and JUDITH FOSTER, of Ipswich. She was born 1618 and died 9 April 1705.

Lieut. Francis Peabody came from St. Albans, Hertford County, England, 6 April 1635; having received a certificate of good character from his minister, he was examined for emigration, and gave his age as twenty-one. It is thought that he lived for a time in Lynn; but in 1636 he was living in that part of Ipswich called Candlewood. 1639, he moved to Hampton, N. H., where he remained several years. 1649, "being minded to live nearer Boston" he sold his property in Hampton and moved to Topsfield, where he lived until his death.

"25-1-1650. Francis Peabodie of Hampton, planter, for £76 13s. conveys to Robert Drake of Exeter, my dwelling-house, barn and 10-acre lot in Hampton * * * * * 3 acres of meadow formerly belonging to Isack Pirkins, * * * * * 10 acres, 13 acres, 13 acres of Marsh towards ye springs * * * one share in ye great Ox common, and 3 shares in the rest of commons".
(Old Norfolk Co. Records.)

He owned extensive estates, his lands lying in Rowley and Boxford as well as in Topsfield. In 1668, his county rate was £1-4s-2d, the highest in town; 1669, his tax was £4-5s-2d, it being the largest tax paid in Topsfield; 1681, his rate for the minister was £3-4s.

"At the period when the business transactions of this town [Topsfield] begin to appear in record, Lieut. Francis Peabody was evidently the first man in the place, for capacity and influence. And such he continued to be, until the infirmities of age, we may presume, withdrew him from the activities of life".

(Cleaveland's Historical Address. 200th anniversary.)

That he was a man of intelligence and integrity is shown by his constant services to the town. He was soon elected to serve as town clerk and selectman, and filled both offices for many years. 1664, was on a committee to straighten a boundary so as to "not damnify the town." Also on a committee to lay out fifty acres for the "Vse of the ministray." Also on a committee to "Vew A percell of Land" which Edmund Bridges wished to buy of the town. This same year he was given permission to build a grist mill and flow the common, and the town records show that the mill was complete as early as 1666. There is an account of this mill and a picture of it in the Essex Antiquarian for July 1897. 1671, he had permission to build a saw mill, provided it did no damage to the people or their meadows. In 1842 the old saw mill was taken down and used for firewood. In 1895 the old grist mill was still standing, though not in good repair, it not having been used since 1892.

1667. On a committee to "Vew and Lay out a hie way."

1668. On a committee to "Lay out and deuide the Common on Salem side of the Riuer."

1674. On a committee to "bound the medow that old Goodman Gould sould for ye Towne to seuerall of our Nearbores."

1676. Chosen to "Inspect ani parson ore parsons that shall profane the saboth and to proseed against ani that shall be falte as the law deractes."

1680. Chosen to "sele wates and mesures." Also chosen "by the town of topcfeeld * * * * according to dyraction from the honared maior genarel danison for produsing the best auidance tha can to proue out titel good to the sile wee liu on."

1680. On a committee to agree with Mr. Danforth in reference to his work in the ministry.

1681. On a committee "to discorse with Mr. Capen to stay and preach here with vs at Topsfield a while." Also, Lliut, pebody and john Gould "are chosen to Transcribe all ye old Towne booke in to ye new Towne booke as is Needfull to bee don."

1683. On a committee to "meete With ye Gentellmen that Come from Ipswich * * * * to settell a Line betweene Ipswich and Topsfield."

1684. On a committee "to prouide for Mr. Capen ordanation."

1685. On a committee to settle the bounds of the parsonage lands.

1687. On a committee to "seate the people in the meeting house."

1694. On a committee to renew the bounds between Ipswich and Topsfield.

His will is a very lengthy document. In it he gives to his sons, John, Joseph, and William both land and money; to his sons Nathaniel and Isaac, land only, though Isaac receives a large amount, "on consideration of ye providence of God in disabling him by the loss of one of his legs." He gives 100 acres of land to his wife's son, Daniel Wood. He also makes bequests to his grand children, Jacob Peabody, Samson How, Kesia and Mercy Peabody; and he gives five pounds each to his daughters Lydia Perley, Mary Death, Sarah How and Hepsibah Ray. He provides for his wife as follows:

I do reserve for Mary my wife ye south end of my house for her use to live in, as also ye new cellar, as also ye use of two milch cows which she shall choose out of my milch kine. Also my will is yt my son Isaac shall pay to my wife Mary yearly twenty bushels of Indian corn, four bushels of wheat, four of rye, and six of malt; also yt my wife have liberty to keep two or three swine, as also yearly half a duzen pounds of wool; also my will is yt my wife shall have pasture for her cows with my son Isaac's, as also yt my son Isaac shall provide fodder for them in ye winter; as also yt my wife shall have liberty for an horse to ride on as she shall have occasion. Also my will is yt in case my wife marry again yt then all ye privilidges abovesaid shall cease but during her widdowhood she shall also have (as benefit by my orchard) yearly a barrell of cider, as also sour apples as her occasions either in summer or winter shall require. two beds, together with needful fire wood provided for her, for which end she shall have ye use of such of my oxen as shall be needful. Also I do order yt Samson How shall live with my wife till he shall come to ye age of twenty-one years, and be at her command to be helpfull to her on all accounts as she shall have occasion; and in case Samson How shall be taken away by his father before he shall have served as aforesaid, yt then my said wife shall have that hundred acres of land abovesaid (given conditionally to ye said Samson) to provide for herself such help as shall be necessary: and in case my wife shall dye before ye said Samson How shall arrive at ye aforesaid term of years yt then he shall be at my wife's dispose to whom she shall see good, and in case ye said Samson will not comply with such dispose, yt then ye said hundred acres of land intended for him shall be at my wife's dispose.

PEDIGREE XV.

The Foster Family.

(Forestarius, Forester, Forster, ffoster.)

The emigrant ancestor of the American family was descended from the Fosters of the North of England, who were among the most ancient and well known families of that country. They intermarried with many of the eminent northern families, and occupied many prominent positions. Like most old families, the origin of the Fosters is somewhat legendary. One account gives as the first Foster in England, a Sir Richard Forestarius, brother-in-law of the Conqueror, and consequently son of Baldwin V, of Flanders. Another account calls him Sir William Forestier, "a Norman cavalier;" and a genealogy of the Fosters published in England, calls him Gilbert de Buckton, from his place of residence, or Gilbert Forester, from his occupation.

The Foster coat of arms bears three bugles, the crest being a bent arm bearing a broken lance. The motto is "Si Fractus Fortis."

Married, (published 12 Jan. 1789) Emerson, son of Maj. John and Mary (Emerson) Baker, of Topsfield.

Mr. Emerson Baker, with his family, moved to Maine, and thus far, the family has not been traced. Betsey Porter was considered the brilliant one among her brothers and sisters; and when she moved away, her mother said that she did not worry for Betsey, as she could easily get a living anywhere, under any circumstances.

NEHEMIAH⁷ PORTER,

(Samuel⁶ Porter.)

Born in Bradford, 18 Sept. 1775; died in Manchester, N. H., 27 Aug. 1853.

Married, 31 May 1801, Lois, daughter of Reuben and Betsey (Carleton) Gragg, of Boxford. She was born Sept., 1780. died at the home of her son, Pierce Porter, in Manchester, N. H., 5 April 1845. Her father, Reuben Gragg was a Revolutionary soldier, marching on the Lexington Alarm, 19 April 1775. (Mass. Archives, Lexington Alarm, Vol. XI, page 259.)

Nehemiah Porter was a small man, very alert in all his movements, and of a somewhat impatient disposition. It is told of him, that on one occasion he made a visit to a son, intending to return by the railroad, then recently built. He arrived at the station about half an hour before the train was due, and being in something of a hurry, and having no faith that the train could be on time, walked the whole distance home, about eight miles. He had a very peculiar cap made for himself, consisting of three triangular pieces of firm woolen cloth, one red, one green and one tan color, all meeting in a sharp point at the top and surmounted by a tassel; a drab cape was sewed to the bottom of two of the sides protecting his neck and shoulders. This cap he wore on all important occasions, and when he appeared in it at the town meeting, he was greeted with cheers.

About 1803 he moved to Raymond, Me., where he owned a farm on the shores of Sebago Lake. He lived here for ten or twelve years, when he returned to Chester, N. H., his parents urging him to do so, as they were old and all their children were married and away. Later he moved to Manchester, N. H., where several of his children lived, and where both he and his wife died and were buried.

His grandchildren still quote his sayings, of which the following are examples. "Let him do as he wants to, and he won't go to the devil grumbling." To a member of the family who was hunting for a lost article he said, "Look where you think it isn't just as much as where you think it is."

He had a considerable talent for acting, preferring the rather more stately parts; and was often called upon to take part in amateur performances.

Books were neither plentiful nor cheap in his time, but the few he had he mastered; and among them, he loved none better than the works of Josephus, of which he had a very accurate knowledge.

The latter part of his life was spent with his daughter, Mrs. Mary Stark, at whose home he died.

Mrs. Sarah (Emery) Hoover was a person of unusual character, and had a very eventful life. Being thrown early upon her own resources, she joined her brother David in a Massachusetts town, where she followed the calling of a tailoress, going about from house to house, as was the custom of the times. While here, she became acquainted with a family who were going to try their fortunes in what was then considered the far west; that is, western New York. She joined them and made the long journey safely, and started in business for herself, and succeeded so well, that she soon had quite an establishment of her own. Feeling that the other members of her family would have a better chance in the newer section of the country, she returned to Chester, and took back with her, her mother and two young brothers, Charles and Benjamin. The journey was made in a carriage until they reached the Erie Canal, when Mrs. Emerson and Benjamin took the boat, while Mrs. Hoover and Charles continued the journey with the horse. Later she made another visit to Chester, and took back with her John⁷ Porter, (No. 39) who remained with her until his death.

Married, 11 Nov. 1828, Samuel, son of John and Betsey (Stark) Stark, of Manchester, N. H.

Mr. Samuel Stark was a farmer and lived in Manchester, owning a large farm on what is now North Union street.

Mrs. Mary (Porter) Stark was endowed with much personal beauty, great originality of mind, and kindness of spirit. She was a most hospitable hostess, and without any apparent effort, a most entertaining talker. She was unconventional in her dress, her speech, and her manners, and was usually called "Aunt May" by her friends and acquaintances, as well as by her relatives. During the latter part of her life, her dresses were all made after one fashion, open in front to show a white lace neckerchief, though this was not the fashion at the time, and she usually wore a lace cap. Many interesting stories are told of her, one of which is as follows: She was left in charge of a fever patient at a time when it was believed that such sufferers should not be allowed to drink water. As the case was considered hopeless, she decided to give the patient all the water he wanted. To the surprise of all, he was much better in the morning, and under her ministrations entirely recovered; but it was not until long after that she told of her water-cure. During the 44 years of her widowhood her house was a sort of rendezvous for all her nieces and nephews, a visit to "Aunt May" being always a most enjoyable form of outing. Her sympathies were always with the unfortunate, and the needy never appealed to her in vain. During the course of her life, seventeen children, none of them her own, made her house their home.

Married, 1st., 4 Dec. 1836, Caroline Augusta Reed.

Married, 2nd., 13 June 1841, Catherine Miranda, daughter of Rufus and Elizabeth Baker (Preston) Phillips, of Chester, N. H. She was born in Bradford, 13 June 1822. (See No. 336.)

Mr. George W. Porter, at the age of eighteen, made his way to Boston, feeling that he was old enough to try life for himself. He entered the grocery business, at first living in the family of his employer. A few years later he engaged in the same business on his own account, but left it and became a travelling salesman for a firm of ship chandlers. He was naturally a studious person interested in religious questions, and spent some time in the study of theology; and to the end of his life he felt that the ministry was more in harmony with his natural gifts than trade. When he lived in Boston he attended the church of the famous Hosea Ballou, and was a teacher in his Sunday School. Although his schooling was meagre according to the modern standard, yet he had gifts which remedied this defect. He had an innate loftiness of mind, courtliness of manner, and many noble traits of character.

He was very generous; he always sought the best company; and he was ambitious, not only for himself, but for all his kin. During the latter part of his life he lived in Somerville, where his widow and daughter still reside.

Mrs. Catherine M. (Phillips) Porter, had the best training in her childhood and youth, for the duties of her maturer years, life on an old-fashioned farm. Along with habits of industry, she here learned to find enjoyment in a love of nature which has never left her. The quiet of country life left her leisure to give her attention to high things, and her naturally artistic temperament was strengthened by the constant contemplation of the beauties by which she was surrounded. She has always enjoyed literary work, and has been a contributor of both prose and poetry, to the local publications.

Mr. Charles C. P. Porter spent the greater part of his life in Manchester, N. H., in the employ of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Co. He was something of a mechanical genius, having invented a "cleaner" or roll cover, by which good work could be done with cotton dyed in the bulk, a very difficult thing to do. The company claimed the invention as theirs, saying it had been thought out during the time he was paid to work for them. Like most of his family, he was tall, straight, and well formed, had dark hair, large gray eyes, and a firm quick step. In youth he was stern, and not over fond of company; still with a friend or two, he loved to go on long hunting and fishing trips, camping out and cooking his own food for days at a time. In old age he was mild, social, hospitable, and fond of children.

ELIZABETH⁸ PORTER, (Nehemiah⁷ Porter, Samuel⁶ Porter.)

Born in Chester, N. H., 24 Nov. 1823; died in Holyoke, 3 Nov. 1894.

Married, 30 Aug. 1840, Sutherick Jackson Weston.

Mrs. Elizabeth (Porter) Weston was a woman of sweet and quiet disposition; she found her interests chiefly in her home, and had no ambition to lead in church or society. She loved music and flowers, but most of all, her family. She had good judgment, and an abundance of common sense. As a housewife, she was thrifty and industrious, and worked hopefully and patiently. Her influence was gentle and lasting. Her husband had such confidence in her executive ability that he placed his income in her hands to be expended by her according to her own judgment, and she seldom erred. She was an exemplary woman, a wise mother, and a devoted wife.

Mr. S. Jackson Weston was taught in his early days the lesson of self dependence, and this lesson he practiced all his life. He possessed good sense, tender feeling, strict honesty, and a sense of religious duty. Not having opportunity for study in early life, his spare time was given largely to reading, and almost wholly such books as were of a practical nature. When he carried the mail from Antrim to Keene, N. H., he strapped his book on his lap that he might study whenever a chance offered. He had decided opinions, and though he was not aggressive, he never hesitated to make himself felt and understood. He was fond of a joke, but it was an early riser who could put one on him. He was a successful manufacturer, and the inventor of the revolving lawn sprinkler, now so commonly used.

ELIZABETH BAKER⁸ PRESTON, (Hannah⁷ Porter, Samuel⁶ Porter.)

Born 1802; died 10 July 1849.

Married, 12 June 1821, Rufus, son of Timothy and Deborah (Buswell) Phillips, of Bradford.

Mrs. Elizabeth (Preston) Phillips was a woman of unusual intelligence, and of remarkable executive ability. Her daughters were carefully trained in all the arts of housewifery, while their mental improvement was by no means neglected. She was herself of very industrious habits, and allowed no idleness in any of her household.

Mr. Rufus Phillips was a man of fine character, with a pronounced dislike for everything low; he despised gossip, and never allowed himself to speak slightly even of the unworthy. Though not bred to the work of a farm, he brought willing heart and hands to the one he bought in Chester, N. H. When he took the place, the house was unfinished, and the land seemed buried in rocks. Year by year all this was changed, and it became a very comfortable and pleasant home. Being on the road from Haverhill to Concord, it was the favorite stopping place for all the friends and relatives who passed that way.

after midnight before she sought her bed. She is still remembered by her friends, both for her witty conversation, and for her writings, published in the periodicals of the day.

Mr. Philip Stark was for many years a manufacturer of leather belting for the Manchester Mills, but his health becoming impaired, he moved to a farm in East Concord, N. H. He was a man loved for his sweet, peace loving disposition, and his honest, unselfish dealings with his fellow men.

Mr. Benjamin K. Emerson, for many years a resident of Canandaigua, N. Y., was a tall, erect, fine looking man, with a broad high forehead, full beard, regular features, and genial manners. He was an excellent example of the sturdy Yankee boy who wins his way by sheer force of character. At the age of thirteen, he was captain of a canal boat; a little later he read medicine for two years with a physician in Tyrone, N. Y., where he also served as Justice of the Peace. After this, he took up farming, and at one time, owned about five hundred acres of land. He also dealt in milk, and was a successful veterinary surgeon, in which occupation he continued until his death. When the Civil War broke out, he was eager to go to the front, but deferred to his mother's wishes, and remained at home. He had a kindly, affectionate, generous disposition, and was always ready to listen to the troubles of others and to render all the aid his circumstances would permit.

Married, 22 Nov. 1871, James Latham, son of James M. and Zillah (Chenery) Campbell, of Manchester, N. H.

Mrs. Catherine (Porter) Campbell was the fourth in a family of five children, three of whom died in childhood. After graduating from the State Normal School at Framingham, she became a successful teacher in the public schools of Manchester, N. H. The keynote of her character was helpfulness, and many had the greatest cause for thankfulness for the inspiration of her daily life. She had an eager interest in education and philanthropy, and her loss was keenly felt by many outside the circle of her family.

Mr. James L. Campbell was early apprenticed to the printing trade, and, it might almost be said, grew up in a printing office. He was one of the owners of the Manchester Union, and later became one of the firm owning the Lowell Morning Times. Since 1896, he has been engaged in mercantile employment, calling for the work of a correspondent and expert advertiser. Mr. Campbell lives in Lowell, though his business is in Boston.

415. KENNETH EATON¹⁰ CAMPBELL, born in Manchester, N. H., 9 Oct. 1878. After an attendance of two years at the Lowell High School, he entered the employ of a local hardware dealer. In 1899, he enlisted in the 46th U. S. Volunteers for the war in the Philippines, and spent two years in the service, participating in the battle of Montalban, and in various skirmishes and "hikes" to circumvent and capture small bodies of the enemy and their arms. After his return to Lowell he returned to his former employment, but compromised with the military inclination by becoming a member of the State Militia.

CHARLES PHILLIPS⁹ PORTER,

(Pierce⁸ Porter, Nehemiah⁷ Porter, Samuel⁶ Porter.)

Born in Manchester, N. H., 24 June 1834.

Married, 13 Nov. 1864, Rebecca Wentworth, daughter of Hazen and Sarah S. (Batchelder) Saltmarsh, of Bow, N. H.

Mr. Charles P. Porter entered the merchant service at about the age of fifteen, and continued in it until the breaking out of the Civil War, when he enlisted in the navy, seaman on the U. S. Steamer, "Massachusetts." 2 July 1861, he was captured by the enemy off Cedar Keys, while on board a small, unarmed vessel, bound for Key West. He was confined in Tallahassee for about ten days, and then sent to Richmond, Va. This was the first considerable capture of Union soldiers by the Confederates, and the prisoners were considered hostages for the crew of the rebel privateer, "Petrel." The building in which he was confined was converted into a hospital, where he served until he was exchanged, under a flag of truce at Newport News, in Jan., 1862. He was discharged the following May. 10 July 1862, he again enlisted, and was transferred to the Steamer "Conemaugh," at Portsmouth, N. H., as Master at Arms. He was on the blockade most of the time; was in the attack on Morris Island; also at Fort Sumter, July 1863; and in the fight at Mobile Bay. He was discharged at New Orleans, 8 Sept. 1864, as Captain of the Afterguard.

After the war was over, Mr. Porter settled in Manchester, N. H., where he now lives. He was in the employ of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Co. until a few years since, when he retired from active business.

CHILDREN.

416. ANNIE BROWN¹⁰ PORTER, born in Manchester, N. H., 23 Oct. 1865; died 16 Sept. 1891. She was a person of unusual intellectual abilities, her gifts in this line manifesting themselves in early childhood. She graduated from the Manchester High School and from the State Normal School at Worcester, after which she taught in the public schools of Worcester until the spring of 1891. She was a fine musician, having a clear, sweet soprano voice, and was also proficient on the banjo, and an excellent piano player. She was naturally of a social disposition, very cheerful under all circumstances, and with a wide circle of friends. Her ambition was much beyond her strength, which was never great, and her early death was undoubtedly due to her persistent labors both in her school and her church.

417. ELIZABETH REBEKAH¹⁰ PORTER, born in Manchester, N. H., 8 Oct. 1869; died, 26 Dec. 1892. Married, 5 Oct. 1892, Charles Anthony, son of Frederick and Bertha (Ainsworth) Allen, of Manchester. Mrs. Elizabeth (Porter) Allen, had from her childhood, a strong inclination for the study of music, and after a two-years' course at the Manchester High School, devoted herself to the mastery of the piano, and became a very proficient performer on that instrument. She had no desire for publicity, and no intention of becoming a public performer; but improved her talents for the enjoyment of her friends and family. Although of domestic tastes, and shining chiefly in the home, she had a numerous circle of acquaintances, among whom her influence will not be forgotten.

GEORGE FRANKLIN⁹ PORTER,
(Pierce⁸ Porter, Nehemiah⁷ Porter, Samuel⁶ Porter.)

Born in Manchester, N. H., 14 Dec. 1838; died, by accident, while attending a G. A. R. encampment, at Columbus, Ohio, 21 Sept. 1897.

Married Anna Isabella Parks.

Mr. George F. Porter made his first voyage when about 18 years old, sailing on the ship "Lancaster" from Boston to Melbourne, Australia, thence to the East Indies, and home. On arriving in Calcutta, the ship was sold, and all hands discharged. He therefore enlisted in an English regiment raised to fight the sepoys, but being under age, was sent home on board the "South Shore." In 1859, he shipped on board the "Panther," bound to San Francisco around Cape Horn. On arriving in California, he went to work on a ranch in San Mateo county, where he remained until the breaking out of the Civil War. 17 Aug. 1861, he enlisted in the first company of infantry raised in California. The greater part of the time he was in the army, he was employed in fighting the Indians, being stationed for some time at Fort Yuma, Arizona. He was discharged at La Cruces, New Mexico, 31 Aug. 1864, and walked from that place to Leavenworth, Kansas, a distance of about fifteen hundred miles. He went to Cincinnati in 1865, and moved to Louisville, Ky., about ten years later. He was in the government service most of the time, and shortly before his death was appointed revenue collector by President McKinley. He was a tall, broad-shouldered man, with blue eyes, brown hair, and wore a full beard. He was a genial, generous, unselfish person, preferring the pleasures of home to other forms of enjoyment. His adventurous life furnished him with a fund of stirring anecdotes, which he told with great skill. To the end of his life he retained a love for his early New England home, and his early associates, and always believed that he might be able to finally live in that favored region. Like many of his family, he had a gift for music, being a good singer, and proficient on several instruments. Although he was not able to realize his wish, and make his home in New England, he made several long visits to the home and friends of his youth, renewing his old acquaintances, and living over the pleasures of his early days.

ESTELLA ERSKINE⁹ PORTER,

(Charles C. P.⁸ Porter, Nehemiah⁷ Porter, Samuel⁶ Porter.)

Born in Lowell, 3 April 1838.

Married, 4 July 1858, Dr. Isaac, son of Rev. Isaac and Hannah (Buel) Sawyer.

Mrs. Estella (Porter) Sawyer, who for many years past has lived in Holyoke, began to live the "strenuous life" long before we had heard the phrase. At the early age of thirteen, she began to contribute to the family support, alternating periods of study with periods of work, a method of education that has not yet been improved upon. At that time, the habit of learning a trade was still in vogue, and Mrs. Sawyer became an accomplished tailoress. Mr. Isaac Sawyer, Sen., was a Baptist clergyman, and his occupation took him into many sections of the country, and he was frequently accompanied by his son's family. From Maine, they went to Pennsylvania, and to northern New York, and after the birth of her eldest son at her father's home in Manchester, N. H., she started alone with her four months' old baby, to join the Sawyer family, in Lawrence, Kansas. This was just at the close of the Civil War, though peace had not been declared, and the country was in an unsettled condition. Many tribes of Indians were moving southwest to the reservations, not openly hostile, but far from friendly. They travelled in their war paint, a terror to the people, so much so, that citizens patrolled the streets at night for many months to guard against surprises. It was nothing unusual to have a hideously painted Indian dash up on his pony to the door or open window, and demand food or money, which none dared to refuse. This state of things lasted all through the first summer and fall. July, 1868, the family moved to Atchison, Kansas, where they finally settled on a farm within the township, but out upon the broad prairie, eight miles from the nearest post-office. The nearest neighbor lived a quarter of a mile away, and the next one was two miles off. A year later, Dr. Sawyer moved his family to Red Oak, Iowa. Western life not proving wholly agreeable, a return was made to New England, Goffstown, N. H., being selected as a place of residence, and this became a pleasant abiding place for seven years. On the death of Mrs. Sawyer's mother in 1879, it seemed best for all concerned, that Mrs. Sawyer should become her father's housekeeper, in Manchester, N. H., which necessitated another removal. It was not until the death of her father in 1884, that the family permanently settled in Holyoke.

CHILDREN.

Mr. Charles P. Sawyer was educated in the public schools of Manchester, N. H. and Goffstown, N. H., the Holyoke High School and Williston Seminary. He began work in the office of the Deane Steam Pump Works, and later went into the works to learn pump making. In the spring of 1897, he began work in the post office, where he remained about four years, and since then has been in the employ of the Ford Bit and Augur Company. He has a fine, well trained voice which is frequently heard in public.

(Charles C. P.⁸ Porter, Nehemiah⁷ Porter, Samuel⁶ Porter.)

Born in Manchester, N. H., 6 March 1843; died there, 23 May 1874.

Married, 30 Sept. 1868, Maria A. Jackson.

Mr. Samuel A. Porter, like all his family, had a great love for music, a fine voice for singing, and he played well on several instruments. When the Civil War broke out, he enlisted in the 4th N. H. Regimental Band, and with them served at Fortress Monroe, Port Royal, Fernandina, and St. Augustine. After awhile the regimental bands were disbanded, and he, in company with the band, was discharged, 16 Sept. 1862. In 1865, he served for a short time in the Quartermaster's department, at Louisville, Ky. After the war was over, he went to Marietta, Ga., and had charge of a drug store there for about a year. Roll covering had always been his trade, and he returned north, settled in Lawrence, and there had charge of a roll shop. He was also a member of the Lawrence band. He was naturally of a sunny disposition, and with ambitions for his family and himself, that he was not able to realize, by reason of his long continued ill health. But those who knew him in his prime, have pleasant memory of his unswerving honesty and fidelity.
